USE THE NEWS OBJECT TO STAY INFORMED

Get the latest news quickly and efficiently

The News Object is a fast and easy way to retrieve, view, and share news items in all languages from a variety of news sources. You can view headlines and create a link to another News Object that will display the related story of the headline you select.

Create your own News Object

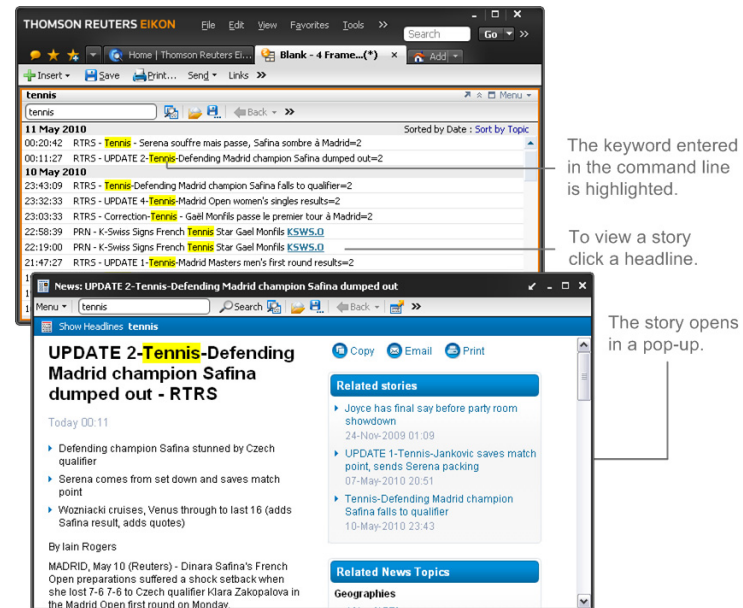

Start by creating your first News Object.

- 1 Click File > New Flex document. The Flex Samples view opens.
 - 2 Choose Blank Flex.
 - 3 Click Insert and then choose the News Object from the menu.
- ① Press F9 to display a News Object in a pop-up.

Display news headlines and stories

In a News Object:

- 1 Enter a keyword, item code, or a portfolio/list code in the command line. Possible suggestions display in a categorized list. For example, News headlines are listed in the News Topics category.
- 2 Press Enter, or select an entry from the categorized list of suggestions. The News Object retrieves headlines or stories containing the search term(s) you have entered, and displays them in the object.
- 3 To view a story, click one of the headlines.

Display news related to a portfolio

The News Object enables you to retrieve the news of all the instrument codes listed in a portfolio. To do so, you can either:

- type the portfolio code/portfolio name in the command line

OR

- link an object containing the portfolio to the News Object

Display related information

Thomson Reuters Eikon allows you to display a story but also all the other stories and news topics related to this story to help you deepen your subject analysis.

When you open a News story:

- you can click any of the related headlines displayed in the right pane of your story
- you can open related headlines, quotes, and links
